Hello Mr. Gamache,

Thank you for your question. We cannot address it under the Vermont Public Records Act because it's asking a complex question, rather than producing any particular record or set of records that's within the CCB's possession. That said, I would be happy to share some background and references that might help.

Tax revenue derived from cannabis businesses comes from many sources, and, likewise, go to many sources – such as municipalities, the State, and the federal government. Like any other business, cannabis businesses pay property taxes, payroll taxes, business income taxes, and similar taxes of general application. And retailers collect and remit ordinary State sales tax, and if applicable, local-option taxes.

The tax that's probably of most interest to you is the State cannabis excise tax created by Title 32, Ch. 27. Jump to section 7909 (at bottom of the linked chapter) to see how the Legislature has determined that revenue from the excise tax is to be distributed. Title 32 is administered by the Department of Taxes, and the Board does not directly track collections. My best recommendation for more information there would be to reach out to the Department of Taxes.

Thank you, and please reach out if you have any further questions,

Nellie
